The Washington State Census Board and Its Demographic Legacy

Faced with remarkable demographic challenges in World War II, the State of Washington not only introduced a pioneering statistical agency, but also implemented a unique idea that remains important today: Local funding should depend on local population.

Tuesday, February 23, 2016
12:30 - 1:30 p.m.
Social Sciences Plaza B - Room 4250
(Light lunch for early arrivals)